Sign ordinance would allow 32 billboards

P&Z beefs up total proposed by chamber

By Ben Carlson
News staff

A vote on a proposed sign ordinance that would greatly add to the number of billboards allowed in the county and strip malls to erect multi-user signs was delayed last Thursday at the request of the Anderson County Chamber of Commerce.

Saying they had not had a chance to discuss changes proposed by the joint city/county planning and zoning commission, chamber officials asked that the vote be tabled until the commission meets in February.

The changes were the result of a meeting late last year during which some planning and zoning commissioners said the chamber's proposal didn't allow enough billboards outside of the ones the chamber sought along the Bluegrass Parkway.

The current sign ordinance does not allow billboards except for those that already existed at the intersection of Workers, boss discuss minimum wage hike

'Living wage' debate continues locally, nationally

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

Last Friday morning at Edwardo's Pizza and Subs began with the usual chores of mixing the dough, slicing up fresh vegetables for the lunchtime salad bar, as well as a conversation about the potential effects of a minimum wage hike in Kentucky.

Owner Dave Richmond, who opened Edwardo's four years ago, sat in the quiet Lawrenceburg restaurant, empty except for the employees busy preparing for the anticipated lunch rush a few hours later.

To be honest, Richmond said, he hasn't been concerned about renewed conversations about increasing the minimum wage for American workers.

Many of his employees — with the exception of servers and a few staff — make above the current set minimum wage, Richmond.

Yet, any increase to minimum

Edwardo's Pizza and Subs kitchen manager Jarek Clark, 29, preps baked potatoes for the day's service early last Friday morning. Clark said although his take home pay is above minimum wage, he's on board for a future wage increase. A bill proposed for the state of Kentucky by House Speaker Greg Stumbo (D-Prestonsburg) outlines a plan to raise Kentucky's minimum wage incrementally from $7.25 an hour to $10.10 an hour over three years.

Insurer opts out of Obamacare enrollments

Local agent says he 'was misled' about getting paid for Medicaid sign-ups

By Ben Carlson
News staff

When Obamacare launched last October, Rodney Goodlett, owner of the Goodlett Insurance Group in Anderson County, was all set to help the uninsured sign up.

Goodlett, who says he could "see both sides" of the controversial new healthcare law, spent hours training and testing to become certified to sign people up in the state's insurance exchange but soon realized that effort simply wouldn't pay off.

"In the first two weeks I probably put on 100 people or so," Goodlett said.

"Then we were informed that for most of them we wouldn't be compensated.

"In the beginning we were led to believe that if we signed someone up in the exchange we'd be

Saffell St. Elementary principal to retire April 1

From staff reports

The Saffell Street Elementary site-based decision making council will begin its search for a new elementary principal due to Principal Robin Arnzen's plans to retire by April 1, according to an email from Superintendent Sheila Mitchell.

Mitchell said she received a letter informing her of Arnzen's intention to retire last Friday, and the district posted an opening for a new Saffell Street principal on Friday, Jan. 17.

Mitchell said Arnzen made the decision to retire because of family health concerns, specifically her two aging parents in need of care and assistance.

The elementary's site-based decision making council is scheduled to meet Thursday, Jan. 23 in a special-called meeting to discuss the selection process for candidates and schedule a tentative date for the new interim principal or full-time principal to start, Mitchell said.

Arnzen is currently serving her fourth year as principal of Saffell Street Elementary for the 2013-2014 school year.

Sen. Paul to visit Lawrenceburg on Thursday

Paul

From staff reports

One of the nation's best-known and most controversial senators will be in Lawrenceburg this Thursday morning.

Sen. Rand Paul (R-Bowling Green) will meet the public from 10 to 11 a.m. at the Best Western, located on US 127 Bypass across from the high school.

The event is open to the public, Paul's staff said.

Paul visited Lawrenceburg in 2009 during his run for US Senate. Known for his libertarian leanings, Paul drew national attention when he spent 13 hours on a filibuster to oppose a presidential nomination for the CIA and the use of drones.

wages rates would have a big impact on the business of feeding hungry Lawrenceburg customers at Edwardo's.

"I'm not against, you know ... I'm all for people being able to make money," Richmond said, adding he was generally in favor of an increase to the minimum wage. "The ripple effect, of course, will be affected in prices."

In the hopes of causing a positive ripple effect for employees living on minimum wage salaries, Kentucky lawmakers recently introduced a House bill to address what they see as a pay inequity in the state.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, more than 600,000 Kentuckians out of 1.76 million workers earn on average less than the proposed $10.10 per hour minimum wage increase. Many of those workers hold jobs such as food preparation and service, waiters and waitresses, cashiers and childcare workers, according to the same labor statistics from May 2012.

Thirteen states, including Kentucky's northeastern neighbor Ohio, will have increased their minimum wage rate above the federal level by January 2014, according to an article in USA Today.

Minimum wage increase isn't just a conversation happening state by state.

According to a Jan. 16 report by the Washington Post, President Barack Obama is currently weighing executive action to raise the wages of workers employed by federal contractors, which may have a ripple effect in increasing the minimum wage for all American workers — including Kentucky.

The last time the state increased the minimum wage was back in 2009 from $6.55 to $7.25 in compliance with a wage increase at the federal level.

Kentucky House Speaker Greg's Stumbo's plan, introduced in House Bill 1 on Jan. 1 and to the legislative body's Labor and Industry committee on Jan. 8, would raise the minimum wage to $8.10 by July 1 of this year, followed by an $1.05 increase in 2015 and another hike of 95 cents by 2016 for a final minimum wage of $10.10.

Stumbo's plan, which echoes a federal minimum wage increase proposal that would also be implemented over three years, has met opposition from those who argue the raise would negatively affect small businesses.

Those in favor of the state or federal increase maintain more money for employees means more spending at small businesses, and perhaps a more robust economy.

The potential reach of the wage increase on small businesses like Edwardo's is what concerns Richmond.

"What a lot of people don't understand — that don't have their own business — it's not just a fixed $2 cost perk," Richmond.

Richmond explained that the increase to a business owner's payroll wouldn't just be limited to the $2.85 difference in base hourly pay, but there would consequently be increases in taxes and benefits for workers as well.

If Richmond was forced to choose between an inexperienced worker requiring a higher base pay versus a more experienced worker earning an hourly rate slightly above minimum wage, Richmond said he may find himself choosing the more experienced workers and fewer young, new hires.

According to Richmond, he currently staffs the restaurant with 27 employees, and roughly 10-12 servers take home less than the minimum wage per hour.

Staff that receive tips follow different rules when it comes to pay, Richmond said. According to the Department of Labor, the minimum cash wage for employees that take home more than $30 in monthly tips is $2.13, same as the national rate.

Most employees besides serving staff, Richmond said, earn anywhere from $7.75 to $9 per hour.

Jarek Clark, a 29-year-old kitchen manager at Edwardo's with more than 13 years of restaurant experience, said he believes an increase to the minimum wage would give workers a better quality of life.

"Money just doesn't get you very far these days," Clark, who disclosed that he earned above the hourly minimum wage and worked full-time at the restaurant said.

"It gives everyone a better incentive to get up and be happy to go to work, to take pride in what they do."

Chad Ledesma, a full-time Bluegrass Community and Technical College student and full-time waiter at Edwardo's, said he takes home roughly $330-400 most week, but is still living mostly paycheck to paycheck.

"I believe that minimum wage should rise with the cost of living, but I believe people should also work," Ledesma, who is going to school for construction technology, said.

Ledesma, a husband and father of two boys ages 5 and 7, said he's in favor of raising the minimum wage, but that education is key to improving the quality of life.

"People have to realize you can't just expect," he said. "We're a society that expects, we're 'owed,' but I also believe people should work."

The restaurant industry is where many teenagers start their first job, Richmond said, because of the emphasis on developing customer service skills rather than expected technical abilities.

That may change with a future minimum wage increase.

"I think what we'll see is, I don't know that you would want to hire someone who has less experience, you're going to look for a better qualified employee," he said.

Richmond said he's in favor of increasing minimum wage for workers, but that in order to do so, he couldn't operate the restaurant at a loss.

"If we can get people to make more money, that's great. But in order to do that, we'll (the restaurant) have to make more money."

Ideally, a minimum wage increase would put more money in the pockets of workers, Richmond said, who could then afford to spend a portion of their pay at small businesses like Edwardo's.

That remains to be seen, Richmond said.

"I just wait, not that I don't care, but me worrying about it isn't going to change anything," he said. "I'll deal with it when it gets here... I'll keep moving forward either way."

compensated. But we later found out we'd only be compensated if the person is paying all or at least a portion of their premium.

"If it's a Medicaid person who was getting the insurance for free, we weren't going to be compensated at all."

Goodlett said it's "probably his fault" for not knowing he wouldn't get paid for Medicaid enrollees, but he wasn't alone.

"I know several other agents who thought the same thing," he said.

Of the 100 or so people Goodlett signed up, he said 80 were eligible for the state's expanded Medicaid program, meaning he would not be paid.

"I'm going to get paid on 20 people, at most," he said. "I can't stay in business that way."

That percentage largely mirrors what is being reported statewide. In a recent release from the Kentucky Press News Service, three of every four enrollees are signing up for Medicaid.

As of last week, 162,000 Kentuckians had signed up for coverage. Of those people, 122,328 enrolled in Medicaid and just under 40,000 in private insurance.

Goodlett said locally, only three of the 100 he signed up had to pay the full cost of their premiums and that the rest were either enrolled for free in Medicaid or received taxpayer assistance in paying their premiums.

Goodlett said he has largely stopped taking referrals from the state to sign people up, other than those who will pay at least a portion of their premiums. He said he feels bad about it, but has no other choice.

"It's tough when someone needs help and needs to be guided, but it takes up to an hour to go through the process and I can't work for free."

Before stopping, Goodlett said he contacted state Rep. Kim King to see if she could help.

"She did some research but found out there's no money budgeted to compensate the agents," he said. "They had to do that for free."

Goodlett said if he had to do it over, he wouldn't have spent the time and money required to become certified.

He does, however, regret not being able to help people who need insurance.

"If someone calls and needs help and I can do it quickly, I will, but I've got paying customers and clients who need my attention."

Concerns, warnings

Overall, Goodlett said, the state exchange works well, but he is concerned about what's going to happen with Medicaid patients, the cost for non-Medicaid enrollees and what he says are loopholes in the system.

He said it's good that people who previously couldn't afford insurance are getting covered, but worries about them finding a doctor.

"A lot of doctors are saying they won't take Medicaid any more, and the provider networks are very, very narrow," he said.

"This is going to be an interesting journey."

Others, he said, are seeing their premiums skyrocket compared to the policies they had.

"For those not seeing a subsidy, I'm seeing their rates go 20 to 30 percent higher," he said. "I have groups with two employees up to 17,000. The large groups are getting hit with 10 to 15 percent increases and the smaller ones 20 to 40 percent. I think it's going to get worse by this time next year."

As for loopholes, Goodlett said the way Medicaid has been expanded even a wealthy person could qualify for free medical care.

"Through the exchange you could have a millionaire who has tons of money in the bank qualify," he said, adding that a person's assets were previously taken into account.

"Now none of that comes into consideration," he said. "It's not about what you own or are worth, it's about what you made last year or this year."

"For example, if a person is worth $5 million, they could take out a little to live on, say $30,000 that's not taxable, and say, 'OK, I just draw social security and that's all the income I have.' Now, they would still qualify for Medicaid. That's a pretty good deal."

Goodlett offered a word of warning for those employed with companies that offer a qualified plan under Obamacare but find a better deal in the exchange.

"Some are being allowed to do that, but it's wrong," he said. "They're going to get in trouble for that and, if they get a subsidy, will have to pay that money back."

HERO

Normandy and was the recipient of the Purple Heart.

Chandler honored Wells in a surprise visit to the veteran in 2009, and presented Wells with a flag that had flown over the nation's capitol in Wells' honor, according to an Anderson News report from 2009.

Wells built his own home, his daughter's home and several houses throughout Anderson County, former news editor Shannon Brock wrote in a piece about Wells' achievement of receiving his high school diploma at age 85.

Wells received his high school diploma the same year as his only grandson, Graham, in 2009.

Wells retired from the construction business in 1997, according to the 2009 Anderson News article.

"Wells met his wife Lois after he returned from the war. She was still in high school and he was filling in for the man who normally drove her school bus," Brock wrote of Wells.

"There are only a few things Wells has had with him longer than Lois — his scars from being injured in the war and a pocket Bible given to him by a teacher before leaving for the war."

"Miss Lydia Posey Brown gave Wells a pocket Bible with a personalized message inside. She handwrote a couple of encouraging notes and listed some passages he might find comforting."

"Wells said he carried that Bible with him every day — including the day he was struck down in Normandy, Northern France.

"On Aug. 19, 1944, Wells' commander 'asked for four volunteers and, of course, no one did, so he hand-picked four of us to scale this hill to see what we could expect when we all got to the top,' he told the Shelby County Board of Education."

"We didn't make it. A German tank popped over that hill and I took off running as they fired shells and got all four of us. I was the only survivor as far as I know," Truman was quoted as saying in the July 2009 article in The Anderson News.

He was injured during the fighting and spent several months in hospitals. The Bible, according to Wells' account in the Anderson News, likely disappeared with his ruined clothes.

"Wells returned home nearly 15 months after being injured. However, he came home without the pocket Bible. When his clothes were taken away at the hospital, the Bible must have been taken with him, he said.

Three years later, a package arrived in the mail that contained Wells billfold (with a nickel in it) and the pocket Bible. This time, the Bible had an additional note and signature in it — from President Franklin D. Roosevelt."

According to Wells' only daughter Susan Young and her husband Tony, Truman lived an exemplary life as a Christian and business man and was looked up to by friends and family.

"The main thing that I would say is that he was the most Christ-like man I have ever known," Susan said.

Her husband, Tony Young, said one of his fondest memories of his father-in-law was accompanying Truman in June 2011 on an honor flight to Washington, D.C., to visit the World War II memorial. According to Tony, his father-in-law visited the memorial on his birthday and met Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Army Gen. Martin Dempsey.

"I was so happy for (Truman) to get to visit the World War II memorial and be a part of that with him," Tony said. "That's a day that really stands out that I'll cherish forever."

Tony said he also admired his father-in-law for his Christian faith, integrity, dedication to his family and ability to survive and thrive following his military service.

"I always looked at him as an American hero, being a World War II veteran that survived Normandy and carried those wounds with him to the grave and never let that bother him, never let that keep him down," Tony said. "He went on to have a career as a custom home builder, and he didn't let those wounds keep him down one single day."

Wells is survived by his wife of 63 years, Lois Lawrence Wells; a daughter, Susan Young and her husband Tony of Lawrenceburg, two grandchildren, Emily Young of Lexington and Graham Young of Lawrenceburg; a sister, Nancy (Bill) Brown of Lawrenceburg; a brother, Robert D. Wells (Bettie); a sister-in-law, Tyna Wells of Shelbyville, and several nieces and nephews.

CATCHING FISH ON WARM WINTER DAY

Paul Coomes, a retired veteran of the Navy, takes advantage of a sunny mid-January day Monday to catch fish in the county park. Coomes said he moved to Lawrenceburg a couple of months ago to be closer to his grandson, but is no stranger to the town. 'I have family here ... I sort of grew up here,' he says. 'I love it here and have always loved it here.' Coomes, and no one else, would be fishing in the pond just 24 hours later after a snow-storm dumped several inches on the area, forcing schools to close.

Jr. Cotillion accepting applications

From staff reports

The Lawrenceburg Junior Cotillion will begin its 2014 Cotillion Season in February and will be accepting new membership applications, according to a press release.

Applications are being accepted now through Jan. 31 for any interested sixth, seventh and eighth grade boy or girl. The cost to participate is $80.

The fee includes three instructional lessons covering dance, taught by the professionals of the Arthur Murray Ballroom Dance Studio in Lexington, as well as topics such as acceptable social behaviors, table manners, etiquette and more. It also includes a final dance and parent event to be held in The Ballroom at Eagle Lake Convention and Expo Center, a T-shirt, group photo and more.

The program is offered to public, private and home schooled teens in Anderson and all surrounding counties. If interested in receiving a membership packet, email lburgjrcotillion@yahoo.com or call 502-418-2863 as soon as possible.

The 2014 season will be the second year of this locally established cotillion organization.

DUCK DYNASTY?

Probably not, but a mallard sits perched upon the bank of the county park pond as two others enjoy the sunshine and slightly warmer temperatures to take a quick swim.

CORRECTION

In the Jan. 15 edition of The Anderson News, the article 'Man airlifted following wreck on Beaver Lake Road' incorrectly described the location of the landing zone where the driver was airlifted. The driver was airlifted in a nearby field off the corner of Hickory Grove Road and Bardstown Road, not Mill Creek Pike and Bardstown Road.

US 127 Bypass and the Parkway.

But planning and zoning commissioners have proposed allowing them in four additional areas, which include the Bypass-Parkway intersection, along the Parkway near US 53, and within a quarter of a mile from the Mercer and Franklin county lines.

If approved, a total of eight billboards would be allowed in each of the four areas.

The commission is expected to render a decision next month on the proposed changes, which would then require the approval of the Lawrenceburg City Council and Anderson County Fiscal Court.

Commissioners also added to the chamber's proposal the ability for strip malls to erect multi-user signs, allowing businesses located within the mall to have their signs grouped together on a freestanding pole.

That has long been an issue for one of the county's largest developers, Brad Smith, who owns Eagle Lake Convention Center and has lobbied for years to allow his tenants to have a multi-use sign at the intersection of US 127 and Highway 151.

His daughter, chamber board member Jenna Sims, lobbied during the previous planning and zoning meeting to have those types of signs added to the proposed ordinance.

Like it or not, pipeline grants are available

Column as I see 'em ...

Is it because it's viewed as blood money? That was one response when folks in our office were debating why on earth no public agency in Anderson County has applied for a Bluegrass Pipeline grant.

I guess the blood money scenario is a possibility, but given the stated state of financial affairs around here, it would seem they'd take money from nearly any source.

After all, it's not like they're taking a one-week loan from Tony Soprano, you know?

When the pipeline folks announced the availability of those grants, I'm guessing most folks figured they were for fire and EMS purposes to build those agencies up in case of a pipeline-based emergency.

That's clearly not the case, particularly after seeing the variety of Kentucky and Ohio organizations that received grants during the past couple of weeks.

Of course there were some fire and EMS grants awarded, but there were also funds released for education, animal shelter assistance and even wildlife funds.

What's more, grants are also available for economic development, youth or senior services and enhancement of open spaces and parks.

Gee, now where have I read in the past few months about a county that is desperate for economic development, screaming for park improvements, a senior citizens center that is on the brink of losing many of its services, and a school district so desperate for funds that it joined others in hiring a lobbyist to harass state lawmakers into giving them more?

Gee, now where have I read in the past few months about a county that is desperate for economic development, screaming for park improvements, a senior citizens center that is on the brink of losing many of its services, and a school district so desperate for funds that it joined others in hiring a lobbyist to harass state lawmakers into giving them more?

changes to the sign ordinance, but I'm willing to bet that, barring some serious changes, it will be a non-starter with the fiscal court.

The chamber wanted to add a few billboards, but planning and zoning commissioners beefed up that proposal to allow as many as 32.

Well that should look just great, huh?

Forget a simple majority; my guess is that such a proposal won't get the vote of even one magistrate.

Personally, I'd hope it doesn't get a single vote from anyone simply because of its call to force people to remove campaign signs from their private property within seven days of an election, while other businesses (real estate, service) can keep their signs up for up to a month.

I know folks tire quickly of campaign signs, but I'd prefer to err on the side of the First Amendment in this case.

Speaking of hope ...

It's amazing to see how generous people can be when it comes to helping children.

Everyone does a little something; even people who don't want or have use of children support them through their taxes, like it or not.

Then there are those who go fully out of their way who aren't looking for publicity or a pat on the back.

Denny Markwell is one of those people.

Denny is best known for butchering deer at his shop located at 1389 Bruner Road.

Check that. He is best known for the venison summer sausage he makes at his shop, but that's another story.

Again this year, Denny and his staff voluntarily cut and wrapped the deer killed during a youth hunt organized by local Fish and Wildlife agents that allows children who would otherwise get a chance to hunt to learn how to safely do so.

Denny and his crew cut and wrapped nearly 30 deer and didn't charge the children or their parents a dime.

That's nearly $3,000 in services that he donated again this year, which is simply and incredibly generous act.

The bottom line is that Denny doesn't have to do that, but he does it because he knows that it's far better to have children learning how to hunt than it is to do many of the other activities children seem to do these days.

On behalf of hunters all over Anderson County, thanks for what you do, Denny.

Looking for a few good trumpets, flutes

Common, I know you have them.

They're hiding in attics or basements, maybe slowly developing mildew and rusting away under a layer of dust from lack of use or neglect.

Or maybe you just don't have time for them anymore.

I'm talking about your clarinets and flutes, your drum set and your high school-era trumpets: instruments that if you're not using currently that could be put to better use for budding musicians at the middle school.

You've seen the marching band mentioned here in this column before, but I'm not talking about the Marching Bearcats this week.

If you don't care about music or band or middle school education at all, then feel free move on to another wonderful page of our newspaper. Nothing's keeping you reading the following sentences except your own free will and a set of working eyeballs.

But for those of you who have miscellaneous musical

Schools need additional funding

To the editor:

Anderson County's Helping Hands—Heart of Community wants to raise awareness concerning a critical issue facing the state's General Assembly. Our community needs new school funds to match the higher expectations for our educators and students. Without new funds, our schools will be at a disadvantage in providing children with the quality education they need and deserve.

Without additional funds from the state, students will not be able to be as competitive with students from other counties in academic events and for college scholarships.

A student has only one opportunity to obtain a quality education. Unlike most of us older citizens, some elementary students in our community have never seen nor held a textbook purchased by the state. The future of students and our community depends on a well-educated population, and that requires a well-funded public education system in Anderson County.

Our state legislators must make increasing education revenue the top priority in this legislative session. Budgetary cuts at state and federal levels have created rough situations where teachers, school administrators and staff are having to make do with less than what is necessary with teaching materials, employee training and other educational needs in classrooms.

As a group of individuals who care immensely about our community and the future leaders of Anderson County, we encourage others to help send an important message to the state Senate and House of Representatives: Our Kids Can't Wait!

We're asking others to join us in this effort to get what's best for our children by contacting our state legislators, Sen. Julian Carroll and Rep. Kim King. Ask them to make a commitment for finding the necessary funding to keep our students moving forward to a bright future.

In Bluegrass Pipeline debate, neither side wants use of eminent domain

For the past three months, representatives of Bluegrass Pipeline have been meeting in the homes of landowners in 13 Kentucky counties to discuss the project and the prospect of purchasing an easement, which is the right to use a narrow strip of land for installation of the underground pipeline.

We're getting to know people and are beginning to become a part of the communities ranging from Williamstown and Georgetown to Frankfort and Elizabethtown. To date, we have purchased easements for more than 60 percent of the route, and our ongoing community grant program is helping with a variety of projects including animal shelter expansions, community beautification and funding for life-saving equipment at volunteer fire departments.

Having built and operated pipelines in America for more than a century, we have developed strong relationships with hundreds of communities and tens of thousands of landowners across dozens of states. The Bluegrass Pipeline team consists of Williams, a Tulsa, Okla.-based energy company, and Boardwalk Pipeline Partners, which already operates several hundred miles of pipelines in Kentucky and employs hundreds of people here. So in a lot of ways, Kentucky is already home to us.

In Kentucky, eminent domain is an issue that has our attention and that of others. It's a topic of interest right now in the state legislature and is a matter in litigation with a group recently pulled together around this topic.

Those public arenas of lawmaking and litigation do generate headlines. To be clear, however, we have not used or threatened to use eminent domain to secure easements for the project.

Instead, our efforts and resources are largely focused on kitchen-table discussions. So far, Kentuckians have received nearly $27 million for easements, much of which will flow through local economies. We've also learned that this opportunity has allowed families to address important needs in their lives such as long-delayed surgeries, paying off debts and upgrading vehicles and equipment.

Pipelines and landowners have voluntarily coexisted for generations. It is our intent and desire to obtain all easements through negotiation, as has been the case with our other projects. We're focused on fairly compensating each individual landowner for the right to use a narrow easement on their property and they can continue farming, hunting and using the land as before.

In addition to compensation, we work with each landowner to determine the best route across his or her property.

Using geologists, biologists, engineers and other experts, we take great care in studying the route and designing the pipeline in order to protect habitat and natural resources while minimizing disturbances during installation and provide the safest operation of the pipeline.

Bluegrass Pipeline is part of a larger design of our national energy infrastructure to make necessary deliveries of natural gas and natural gas liquids (NGLs) across North America. The bitterly cold weather that blasted across Kentucky and much of the nation in early January is recent evidence of how we depend on energy to heat our homes and keep the lights on. From our most basic survival needs to life's comforts, we all depend on energy.

Bluegrass Pipeline will be a common carrier transporting NGLs, which are natural gas derivatives with familiar names, including propane, ethane and butane. These are the building blocks for many of the things people need and use every day - from seatbelts to medical supplies and baby bottles to smart-phones. Many Kentucky manufacturers rely on NGLs in developing their products. Efficiently transporting NGLs to market is a vital part of getting natural gas produced to meet the growing demand for residential and commercial uses, as well as electricity-generation. NGL and natural gas production are closely linked and necessary to serve America's energy needs.

With the Bluegrass Pipeline, Kentucky will be an integral participant in providing affordable, abundant and accessible energy to American manufacturers.

That means jobs, and it means Kentucky continues to play a part in our nation's energy security. Bluegrass Pipeline also creates opportunities for Kentucky businesses to tap into raw materials - these NGL supplies - that are significantly economically advantaged over supplies available elsewhere in the world.

Bill Lawson and Michael McMahon are representatives of Williams and Boardwalk Pipeline Partners, LP, two leading energy infrastructure companies, who have partnered to develop Bluegrass Pipeline. For more information visit BluegrassPipeline.com.

Gardening facts to wile away snowy day

I was never a straight A student, but I loved to learn and could always be counted on to offer up some strange, fun fact.

Trivial Pursuit was my favorite game. As we wait out the winter, I thought it would be fun to expand our knowledge into the plant world, along with a few human tidbits, as well.

Next time you're walking around the farm with friends and family, try adding a little science to the conversation. Did you know that we have the rose family to thank for all of our apples, pears, plums, cherries, almonds and peaches? Bet you thought they only gave us flowers, right?

Here's a multiple-choice question for you. If I gave you a list of potatoes, squash, beans and cucumbers could you pick out the fruit? It's the cucumbers. Fruits are really weird when it comes to facts. The cucumber skin has more nutrients than the insides. There's a marketing fact the pickle makers could use.

One of my favorite fruits is the pineapple, but a pineapple is not a single fruit. It's actually a group of berries fused together. Strawberries are the only fruit with its seeds on the outside, averaging 200 seeds per fruit.

You've probably heard the saying "breaking wind" before, usually after a sour smell came wafting to your nose. Next time think mushrooms. Some mushrooms can make their own wind to blow their spores out into the air.

Speaking of air, did you know that one tree can produce enough oxygen to keep a family of four breathing for a year? True. An apple is actually about 25 percent air, which is why it floats on water, though apple bobbing at Halloween is a long gone tradition.

A tree gets 90 percent of its nutrients instruments still kicking around and aren't hanging on to them for your children or grandchildren, stay tuned.

We're talking about the middle school band, and an open call for instruments.

The need for instruments isn't dire, band director Patrick Brady told me last week, but he's looking to the future and he sees more kids signing up for band than the school has instruments.

The middle school band program isn't going to shut down or be cancelled in any way because of a lack of woodwinds and mallets for student use, so this isn't a mad dash scramble to find trumpets or saxophones.

But the money Brady receives for the middle band budget doesn't always cover what's needed to purchase all the instruments for band.

Of course, students can still rent their instruments through a vendor if they wish, Brady said, which also provides a repair service. Most students rent instruments, and that option will always be available, he said, but there are some students that have a need for a school-owned instrument.

"As the bands have grown in size, the need for school-owned instruments has risen as a result," Brady said. "(I'm) looking for people to donate so I can have more options for people if something breaks and needs a loaner 'til they get theirs fixed or if they can't afford a horn in general."

But the band director said

he could always use parts to repair an instrument for a kid, which he usually able to do for free, especially if it is a school-owned instrument.

Any donated instrument would go directly to the band program and to kids who might need them, Brady said.

Instruments can be in working or non-working order, Brady said, because he can always use parts from an older model to repair another instrument for a student.

Brady said he's in need of flutes, clarinets, saxophones of any kinds, trumpets, cornets, French horns, trombones, baritones, tubas, snare drums, snare stands, drum sets or drum set parts and cymbals. Mouthpieces of any kind would also be appreciated.

"Anything that can save me a dollar where I can put it towards something else," Brady said.

Any donated instruments would be generally used for middle school classes, and would specifically be for beginner musicians, Brady said, although some high schoolers' horns may break and find themselves in need to borrow a portion of the middle school's inventory until repairs are finished.

Contact Brady through email at patrick.brady@anderson.kyschools.us or call the Anderson County High School band room at 502-839-5588 or the high school at 502-839-5118 if you have an instrument that needs a new home, or a new owner.

I can't promise that Brady will dedicate any concert performances or marching band shows to those who donate (because last time I checked, I'm unfortunately unable to read people's minds), but I'm sure he'd be appreciative.

Obamacare help available

From staff reports

Individuals who still need help signing up for the Affordable Care Act, also known as Obamacare, can receive help through a program offered by the Bluegrass Community Action Partnership (BCAP).

Beckie Trent, the lead connector for Woodford and Anderson counties, said BCAP's assistance program has grown in leaps and bounds since it started in late November.

Since then, Trent said she has assisted about 50-60 people from both Woodford and Anderson in signing up for Obamacare, which now has an extended deadline of March 2014 for individuals to seek coverage.

Trent said she's typically in Lawrenceburg on Wednesdays and Thursdays. Those interested in getting assistance with health care sign ups can also set up an appointment and meet Trent at the Department for Community Based Services office located at Hilltop Drive in Lawrenceburg. To make an appointment, contact Beckie Trent at 859-963-6162 or email beckie.trent@bgcap.org.

from the air, and only 10 percent from the soil. Around the world, we use most of our soil to grow tomatoes and potatoes, but it is the onion that is the most widely used vegetable in the world.

One of my most favorite snacks is carrots dipped in peanut butter. Strange but true. Now think on this tidbit. Carrots were originally purple and peanut butter was consider a delicacy served in only the most exclusive tea rooms of New York in the early 1900s.

If you're trying to quit caffeine as part of your New Years' resolutions, you might try an apple. It has the same effect in waking you up. At night, instead of a sleeping pill, you can eat onions as a sedative to help you get to sleep. I'd brush your teeth before crawling under the covers, though.

If you want a food that will cheer you up then eat a banana. It contains a chemical that makes you happy. Keep the peel. It will stop the itch from a mosquito bite when rubbed on the bite and you can bury it under the rose bush to fertilize the plant.

See, I've just filled your brain with all kinds of interesting facts. Your brain can take it. It actually is busiest when we are asleep. Kind of like a grocery store clerk stocking shelves at night, the brain organizes everything we took in during the day, during the night.

That way we can find it again on another day, though some of us may wander the aisles for a bit.

Now, let me close with one final fun fact. A "butt" was originally a unit of measure for wine, used in medieval times. A "buttload" was 126 gallons, of wine, but over time the term found much wider use. So, before we start planning our spring gardens, let me caution you on planting too much of one thing. You really don't need 10 zucchini plants, unless you want a buttload. Happy growing.

Let the voice of the unborn be heard in Frankfort

In Sunday's edition of the Lexington Herald-Leader in an article titled "Abortion laws in the balance," columnist John Cheves describes an impending battle in the Kentucky Legislature to restrict access to, and consequently reduce the number of, abortions in our commonwealth.

Brian Owens
Faith columnist

Abortions are currently "too hard to get in Kentucky for a legal medical procedure" according to Derek Selznick, Reproductive Freedom Project director at the ACLU of Kentucky. Our state "has only two abortion clinics," which forces women from Paducah to Pikeville to "drive all day" to access one.

The article attempts to further illustrate this apparent "difficulty" by pointing out the current laws in Kentucky that require counseling 24 hours prior to have the abortion and parental consent for their underage daughter.

It also lists the so-called spousal notification law, which says that husbands must be informed "within 30 days if their wives have an abortion."

Peppering the column with the pejorative use of the term anti-abortion some seven times to describe pro-life advocates, this article points to other states that have sought to restrict access to abortions, and cites Louisville Rep. Tom Burch, who said annoyingly, "Look at Texas. That will be us;" as if protecting unborn children was some moral travesty to be avoided.

Apparently what is immoral for activists for abortion-on-demand is the impingement on what they see as a woman's so-called fundamental right to end [her] pregnancy. A woman's health and right to privacy, in their eyes, trump the rights and health of the baby in her womb, as if the infant is something that should be able to be removed at her whim, and for whatever reason, or no reason, at all.

You hear many so-called pro-choice advocates say they too want abortions reduced. Why then oppose legislation that would actually reduce the number of abortions?

The article acknowledges the number of abortions is indeed down in Kentucky, from 11,631 in 1988 to 3,929 (which is still an average of nearly 11 babies aborted daily), yet these results seem to be credited to contraceptive use among teens rather than these laws that might actually be doing what they are intended to do—reduce the number of abortions and thus protect the unborn child.

Those representatives in Frankfort who want to do more to protect unborn children are not enemies to women's health as they are being demonized by many on the left to be. They are, however, advocates for both the woman's health and that of another person who should have every right to life as the woman in whose womb he or she resides: the unborn child. A matter of a few weeks and few centimeters should not exempt any child from the right to live.

The Lexington Herald-Leader ran this article prominently on the front page on what just happened to be "Sanctity of Life Sunday." Was this a coincidence? Whether or not this is the case, attempts to negatively stop pro-life legislation in our state capitol further proves the sad reality of why we even need a special Sunday set aside to remember and pray for the unborn and thus seek their equal protection under the law.

Pray for all our legislatures and the difficult task they face. Pray that the voice of the unborn will prevail.

IS THE BIBLE REALLY THE WORD OF GOD?

Recently a denominational preacher wrote in an area paper: "The Bible is not literally the Word of God, but it can become a medium through which we encounter a living Word from God if we read the Bible critically, discerningly and spiritually." My immediate thought was that if it is not the Word of God then I don't need it. If it is indeed a fabrication of uninspired men it has no place in my spiritual life and if it is not God's word then I might as well eat, drink and be merry because when we die we will be like rovers, dead all over.

I have never understood why any liberal preacher could call himself a preacher while deny the inspiration of the Scriptures. He is left with subjective feelings that any man might have, and then try to convince us that HIS feelings are the best. Who can believe such?

The Scriptures begin with: "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth" (Genesis 1:1). Jesus also tells us that we will be judged by the word that he has spoken in John 12:48. How am I going to know his word if it is not recorded for us? Paul tells us that "Faith comes by hearing the word of God" (Romans 10:17). See Also II Tim. 3:16-17. I would not sit one minute at the feet of any man who denies the verbal inspiration of the Scriptures!

50 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Jan. 23, 1964

Bank president Frank Routt named officers at Anderson National Bank.

They included Allen Hanks, vice president; Euith Crossfield, cashier; Mrs. Ollie Lyen and Mrs. C.C. Fallis, assistant cashiers, Clark Rowland, teller and bank clerk; Bruce Royalty, note teller and bank clerk; Mary Searcy, Marguerite Renfro, Brenda Sutherland, Connie Buntain and Mary Jane Briscoe, bookkeepers.

Hanks went to work at the bank in 1948, became assistant cashier in 1951, cashier in 1955 and director in 1958. Miss Crossfield, one of 15 women in Kentucky to hold title of cashier, started work at the bank in 1921, became assistant cashier in 1941.

Mrs. Fallis became affiliated with the bank in 1949 and became a teller in 1959.

Gary Gillis, son of Willard Gillis and the late Mrs. Gillis, pledged to Phi Kappa Tao fraternity at Transylvania College in Lexington. He was in the freshman class.

Mrs. Oren Rawlings and Mrs. Richard Case honored their daughters, Sallie Ellen Rawlings and Jennifer Lee Case, on their 6th birthday, Jan. 16, with a party for their kindergarten class.

Refreshments of ice cream and cupcakes were served.

Guests were Charlan Witt, Clara Sue Shelton, Adelia Lee Huddleston, Carolyn Wells, Mary Yola Kays, Lydia Brown, Jeff Sims, Ronald Gash, and their teacher, Mrs. Grace McKee.

The rest of the story

The story of "Bossy" really got around.

Mr. and Mrs. R.C. Taylor of Santa Ana, Calif., friends of Mr. and Mrs. Don Nowlin of Lawrenceburg, wrote to the News and sent a clipping from "The Register," a daily newspaper of Santa Ana, about old "Bossy" the cow being evicted from her second floor apartment.

Rita Adams, daughter of Marvin Carlton, said it was even on the Chet Huntley and David Brinkley national news program one night.

The cow had been marooned on the second floor in a vacant house on the Carlton farm in the county when she wandered inside, found hay scattered along the steps and happily ate her way into trouble.

Carlton could not think how to get his cow down the stairs and out of the house until he spotted some bedsprings near the house. He hauled them inside, led Bossy to the top of the stairs and stuck the springs behind her. This made her uncomfortable, so she moved down one step. Bossy balked so Carlton said he repeated the procedure and "this time I gave her tail a little twist to help her along."

"I'm gonna find another place to store my hay," Carlton said.

But he never did, according to his daughter.

Army Pvt. William R. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan W. Taylor, Route 2 and other member of the 7th Infantry Division were taking part in Exercise SNOW STORM in Korea.

Leroy Robinson, member of the Anderson High F.F. A. Chapter, received a certificate of award and the Anderson High Chapter received a Gold Sea Certificate representing 100 percent participation in the annual contest sponsored by the Courier Journal, Louisville Times and WHAS, Inc.

Deaths

Bertha Hill McCoy, 87, widow of T. H. McCoy, died at the home of a nephew in Simpsonville. A son, William Goebel McCoy, survived her.

“My daughter, who is now a teenager, has complained for many years about having pain in her lower back, knees and shoulders. We had seen so many doctors, not to mention several physical therapists. All of the results of each visits were the same, stating that they could not find anything wrong.

After beginning care at Pangemanan Chiropractic, the changes have been remarkable. She no longer complains daily of pain and her range of motion has improved to the point that she can touch her toes without pain. She has also had a lot better sleep since getting her first adjustment.

We, as a community, are so blessed to have this husband and wife team here in Kentucky. Not only are they professional and knowledgeable, but they have a way of making you feel comfortable and at home in their office.

My child looks forward to her appointments. We travel an hour and 20 minutes one way, and its worth every minute.

Tammy Hearn Carrollton, Ky.

“After just a week of treatments, my headaches were completely gone, my back felt a whole lot better, I began sleeping better and even had more energy. As I continue my treatments, I have noticed even better sleep which gives me more energy to do everyday activities.

Nikki Royalty

“I've had migraines for so long that I can't remember when I didn't have one. Now I can tell you when my migraines stopped and how long they've been gone. I feel the best ever now, thanks to Dr. Arthur and Dr. Rebecca!

Julie Banner

“I would recommend Pangemanan Chiropractic to anyone because they gave me my life back. I feel so much better after my adjustments, and find it easier to fall asleep and stay asleep. I feel like I have more energy to enjoy all the things that I couldn't do before I started having back pain. What sets them apart from other health clinics is that they genuinely care about you and your health!

Katie Young

“I am convinced that regular treatments and maintenance are important for my overall health. I feel so much better after my visits.

Pangemanan Chiropractic has a genuine concern for their patients. Dr. Arthur, Dr. Rebecca and staff treat you as part of their family. They make a valuable contribution to our community.

“Before we started coming to Pangemanan Chiropractic, our oldest one has had to have four sets of ear tubes, allergy issues since day one, and he has been on Zyrtec since he was about 6 months old. Our second son, Cooper, just turned 2, also has allergy issues, and started taking Zyrtec at about 6 months of age. It was a daily struggle with allergies, ear infections, and tonsils removed. Issues after issues, constant ear infections.

About the adjustments, our boys are very receptive to the adjustments, they fall asleep on the way home.

The very first time we got adjusted and riding on the way home, it was the first time we were riding in the car and Cooper did not scream. We had to look back to make sure he was still with us.

Allergies are better now, Carson is now no longer on allergy medication. The best part is they have never had any ear infection since starting here.

We love it here and highly recommend Pangemanan Chiropractic!

No pedestal for Farmer, other athletes

Last week's chapter of the Richie Farmer saga was more than the wheels of justice turning.

It was a dagger through the heart of a story -- a hometown, feel good story that evolved into a sordid nightmare. And while no one can excuse the basketball legend's actions as Kentucky's Commissioner of Agriculture, the whole affair should serve to make us pause and look at ourselves and how we view those who are gifted at playing a game.

Farmer, of course, was sentenced to 27 months in a federal prison and will have to pay more than $120,000 to the state after pleading guilty to charges of misusing public funds.

When they came to light, the alleged abuses of power were both shocking and disgusting.

After all, Richie Farmer was the hometown hero.

I've been to Farmer's hometown of Manchester several times. I marveled at the beauty of those mountains and, because every time I've been there was to cover a game, the first-class athletic facilities at Clay County High School.

The town is known for basketball and Richie Farmer was the main cog on one of the most popular Kentucky state high school champions ever. Of course, you already knew that.

I first heard about Richie Farmer in 1985. Even in those pre-Internet days, you knew about the great ones. You knew Clay County would be good. The Tigers always were, as they dominated southeastern Kentucky's 13th Region.

But back in 1985, they were exceptional. A freshman guard, Richie Farmer, led Clay to the state championship game before the Tigers lost to Hopkinsville.

Many of us could relate to that chubby little ninth-grader with tree-trunk legs and what looked like a full mustache.

Two years later, much of the state rejoiced when Clay County defeated big-city Ballard in the final. It was Richie, too small and too slow, somehow backing into the lane, then spinning for that deadly jump shot to find the bottom of the Rupp Arena net.

They met again for the title the following year, but this time, Ballard, and Allan Houston, had a little more firepower and took the big prize. Richie's legend grew even bigger when he scored 51 points in the final, bringing his total to 317 in five appearances in the Sweet 16.

No one is even close to that mark.

Like many of you, I was there for every single one of those Sweet 16 games.

And I fell in love with Richie Farmer's game. I was ecstatic when he signed to play for the Kentucky Wildcats. I hurt when he and his teammates went down to Duke in the greatest college basketball game ever played. As the judge said at Farmer's sentencing last week, nothing can ever take those memories away.

Unforgettable, indeed.

But it's also appropriate to ask how much the unbridled adulation showered on Richie Farmer contributed to his downfall.

No, I am not suggesting he is not responsible. Farmer acted and he will suffer the consequences.

But at the same time, I wonder if our obsession with ordinary people who can do extraordinary things on the athletic fields - or any other endeavor, for that matter - has become unhealthy. We have kids today being inundated with social media messages telling them they can do no wrong. We overlook accountability as long as the wins keep coming in.

And we wonder why tales like Farmer's unfold.

To be fair, the vast majority of people playing sports collegiately go on to be great citizens. It is impossible for us to have a one-size-fits-all critique.

But at the same time, you have to wonder if the excesses in adulation contributed to the downfall of Richie Farmer and others.

And that should make us pause to evaluate where we stand.

Lady Bearcats hungry to repeat

Girls taking game to another level following early-season loss to Elizabethtown

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

It's been over four years since that November afternoon when the girls' basketball team from Anderson County Middle School was crowned the best in Kentucky.

At Rupp Arena that Friday after Thanksgiving, the Lady Mustangs whipped Whitley County, got a big trophy and went back to work.

The following Tuesday, many of those Lady Mustangs suited up for the Anderson County High School team as it opened the season with a 52-48 win over Lafayette in overtime. Makenzie Cann, one of those eighth-graders, hit some big free throws down the stretch and joined classmate Eriel McKee in the starting lineup.

That team, which had only one senior and one junior on the entire roster, won 20 games and made an impressive run through the Eighth Region to the Sweet 16, starting a story that could be unmatched in local history.

The final push for the lasting legacy has begun in earnest. In 29 days, the five seniors left from the 15 that suited up at Rupp Arena on Nov. 27, 2009 will take the home court for the final time, ironically against Lafayette.

A few days later, they will begin their quest for the state championship everyone wants to remember.

Last week, the Lady Bearcats were supposed to have gotten some tests about where they stand heading into the home stretch of their careers.

While they started the season ranked No. 1 in virtually every statewide poll, the Lady Bearcats slipped a spot when they dropped a 51-42 decision to Elizabethtown in the championship game of the Republic Bank Classic at Lexington Catholic on Dec. 23.

Since then, the Lady Bearcats seem to have taken their game to another level. A wakeup call?

"I think so," Anderson coach Tony Kays said. "In the Republic Bank Classic, we played four really good

Collins rallies for district win

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Even a night when Anderson County was burning the nets was not enough in a district matchup at Collins last Tuesday.

The Bearcats shot better than 73 percent (19-26) and missed just one two-point field goal attempt all night but still came up short in a 63-55 decision that dropped the Bearcats to 0-2 in 30th District play.

Anderson had led 49-44 early in the fourth quarter, but Collins rallied to sew up the top seed in the district tournament, to be held at Shelby County in late February.

Collins (15-2, 3-0) held Anderson scoreless over a six-minute stretch in the fourth quarter.

"Our execution was tremendous until the game was on the line," said Anderson coach Glen Drury. "Give Collins the credit. They were able to create turnovers when they were behind."

In a back-and-forth game, Anderson was not able to salt the upset away in the final minutes. "We are playing better. Our execution has gotten better, but we are not playing well down the stretch," Drury said.

Guard Austin Cummins led Anderson with 20 points, hitting five 3-point shots on the night. Christian Estes added 13 points and sank a trio of threes.

Ralphie Stone led Collins with 28 points.

"We are struggling at times because we are playing with a point guard by committee. We have not learned how to close games out," Drury said. "But at Collins we did play more as a team than we have been."

Austin Cummins hit five 3-pointers at Collins but it was not enough for Anderson County.

Games with Carroll County at home and at Mercer County were victims to last week's inclement weather. At press time, no make-up dates had been announced. Drury said he has tried to make the best of the situation.

"This club is behind in practice and working on their execution," Drury said, "but playing games is so much different than practices."

"You deal with what you can deal with," he said.

Drury was reminded that his 2009 state tournament team also faced significant weather woes in January. He says there is one huge difference, though. "That 2009 team had more experience and had an experienced point guard in Will Ruggles. They had played together three or four years. This team will be together a year or year-and-a half. That is big difference."

Anderson will travel to Western Hills Friday night and then go to Spencer County for a huge district game on Tuesday night. The winner of that game will play Shelby County in the first round of the district tournament, but the loser will try to derail Collins in the district opener.

Swimmers steady at Woodford meet

From staff reports

Anderson County swimmers showed consistency in a small, but competitive meet at Falling Springs Recreation Center in Versailles last Wednesday.

"We didn't have a whole lot of significant time drops, but not too many time adds either," said Anderson coach Karla Williams. "Rebekah Cardwell was very consistent and dropped time in every one of her events. I am also very happy with Josh Lindsey. Josh joined our team at mid-season and has consistently dropped time in every event he has swum in."

Lindsey turned in a 30.01 in the 50-yard freestyle.

Cameron Peyton's fourth-place finish (25.93) in the 50-yard freestyle and the boys' 200-yard medley relay's fourth-place finish were Anderson's highest finishes for the night.

Lady Bearcats to tangle with top West Va. team

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

It's all about getting better. Coach Tony Kays sprinkled the Lady Bearcats' schedule with rugged teams from out of the region, and even out of the state, with the intention being to pay dividends in the regional and state tournaments.

Such is the case Friday and Saturday when the Lady Bearcats have two monumental tests in the Raatz Fence Classic at Mercy Academy in Louisville.

Friday, the Lady Bearcats take on St. Joseph Central of Huntington, W.Va. at 9 p.m. The Lady Bearcats will get a major test from St. Joe, the top-ranked Class A team in The Mountaineer State.

Through the weekend, St. Joe stood at 12-3, which included a 73-48 win over Ashland Blazer, one of the top teams in Kentucky's 16th Region, in December.

The Irish have won five straight state titles.

"They are really good," Kays says. "They are very athletic and really quick. They spread you out and drive the ball well and shoot the ball well."

But the Irish might be very similar to Anderson in that they are not real big.

Senior point guard Mychal Johnson (5-9) leads St. Joe with 22 points per game. She has signed with Notre Dame and is ranked one of the top 100 players in the nation by ESPN. Another guard, 5-8 Griffin Dempsey, has signed with Charlotte and averages nearly 16 points a game.

"This will be a very good challenge for us," Kays says. "You compete against teams like this and you have to pick your game up higher than it had been."

The same is true Saturday afternoon when the Lady Bearcats are set to take on Louisville Sacred Heart, also in the Raatz Classic, at 5:15 p.m.

Sacred Heart, 12-4, was ranked No. 4 in last week's Litratings and No. 3 in this week's Rating the State rankings.

Daijia Ruffin leads Sacred Heart at 17.5 points a game. Raven Merriweather comes in at 16.5 points. Longtime coach Donna Moir picked up her 500th win two weeks ago and coached Sacred Heart to three straight state titles in 2002-04.

"There is a reason we scheduled like this," Kays said. "We have to play two quality opponents without much turnaround time. It will be a test."

Cann closing in on 2000 points

Anderson's Makenzie Cann could reach 2000 points in her career this week, if no games are lost to the weather.

Cann, who is a five-year starter, had 1,965 points in her career heading into Tuesday's scheduled game with Shelby County. She is second in the Anderson girls' scoring list behind her classmate, Eriel McKee, who had 2,227 through last week's games.

teams. E-town had been there before and they won it. I don't know if that is tradition or not, but that game made us wake up and realize that we have to play four quarters and stay focused."

Before that night, Anderson had a penchant - whether intentional or not - for turning an on-off switch. Since then, the Lady Bearcats have been all over their opponents from the outset.

After a 10-day layoff over Christmas, the Lady Bearcats returned with a 62-point win at Spencer County and a 39-point thrashing of Collins.

"The team is really hungry," said senior Makenzie Cann. "We always are. That's what I love about our team. The E-town loss was tough, but I think after all those days off, we just all came back focused. Ther's only a little time left here and we're ready to take the next step."

Mercer County was the latest to find that out.

"We really stressed coming out and being intense from the beginning," Anderson senior Alex Avritt said moments after the Mercer game.

A program that has been one of central Kentucky's best for over a decade, Mercer had cracked the Litkenhous Ratings Top 20 despite being eerily similar to the 2010 Anderson team - one senior and a slew of eighth-graders on the roster.

It was a mismatch. The 84-47 final score might not even do justice to how thoroughly Anderson dominated the Titans. By the end of the first quarter, Anderson led 24-10 and had put on a shooting clinic, hitting five three-point shots.

"We respect every opponent," Kays said, "and tonight we came out and took care of business early."

The Lady Bearcats went on a 17-0 scoring run in the second quarter to turn a game they already controlled into a rout. By halftime, it was 54-20 and the only question was when the running clock "mercy rule" would be invoked.

Anderson reached that threshold early in the third quarter when the lead reached 36 points. The margin topped out at 74-30 early in the fourth quarter.

The Lady Bearcats were solid favorites but no one saw a rout of that magnitude coming.

Cann led Anderson with 23 points, nine assists and nine rebounds while McKee had a double-double with 17 points and 12 rebounds.

"I think our experience showed tonight," Kays said. "Obviously, the kids were focused and ready to play. I could not be any more proud of our seniors. Kenzie and Eriel just dominated early. They were taking the ball to the basket and distributing the ball."

Which is what Anderson must have just to get back to Bowling Green.

Top rebounder Kali Whiteside (6-foot-1) is now at Asbury University and the Lady Cats have inserted Jessica Rice (5-7) into the lineup.

"Rebounding was a big concern coming into the season, but tonight, we just dominated the boards," Kays noted after the Mercer game.

Anderson should have. A very young Mercer team was one of the few teams Anderson has seen smaller than the Lady Bearcats.

Maybe more than Whiteside's absence, the presence of Simon Kenton in the region is a concern. A year ago, Simon Kenton led Anderson by 10 points with 90 seconds to play in the regional final but Anderson rallied. This year, while Anderson has been at the top of the polls - No. 2 in all the major rankings last week - Simon Kenton has been a consistent Top 10 team.

Anderson's attitude seems to be focusing more on itself than potential opponents.

"We have been working hard every day," Avritt said. "We come in here every day to do what we can to get better."

LEGAL NOTICES

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE
In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Thursday, January 30, 2014, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts herein-after set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):
(1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.
(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.
(3) Easements, restrictions, stipulations and agreements of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office. Assessments for public improvements levied against the property, any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose and any and all planning and zoning regulations imposed upon the subject property.
(4) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff.
Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if he so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder as the successful bidder's cost.

(5) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.

HOROSCOPES

CAPRICORN
December 22–
January 19

Come on, Capricorn. You know you have the goods to get the job done, so why are you stalling? Cast aside your reservations and get a move on.

ARIES
March 21–
April 19

Jeepers, Aries. Who knew you were so popular? You host an event, and suddenly you're in demand. Invitations fly. Accept those committed to a cause.

CANCER
June 22–
July 22

Push, Cancer, push.
Do whatever you must to rally the troops and bring a project to conclusion. Prayers are answered at home.
Celebrate with a party.

LIBRA
September 23–
October 22

Lazy Libra. You have lofty goals but little motivation this week. Don't worry about it. Everyone needs a break now and then. You will soon be back to form.

AQUARIUS
January 20–
February 18

Really, Aquarius. You've tried to help countless times before, and nothing has come of it. Why try again? Mixed messages at work make for an interesting week.

TAURUS
April 20–
May 20

Truly, Taurus, you cannot always take things at face value. If you suspect there is more to a situation than what someone is telling you, there probably is.

July 23–
August 22

Lucky Leo. You manage to pull off the impossible at work, and all the right people are watching. A promotion of some sort could be in order.

SCORPIO
October 23–
November 21

You're rarely challenged, but when you are, you know just what to say and do. That talent will not go unnoticed, Scorpio. Travel plans shift. Go with it.

Rumors are squashed at work, allowing for many sighs of relief. Gratitude is hard to come by at home until a guest arrives. Enjoy the shift in attitude, Pisces.

GEMINI
May 21–
June 21

Hopes fall as further news circles. Relax, Gemini. All is not lost. There is someone in the wings with a plan that will work out. Finances improve with additional revenue.

VIRGO
August 23–
September 22

Some trips are best unplanned, Virgo. Toss some stuff into a bag and see where the road takes you. You won't believe what you encounter.

SAGITTARIUS
November 22–
December 21

Oh, Sagittarius. Your complaints are well founded, but this is not the time to voice them. Wait until a more opportune time arises. A friend makes a request.

45% of Kentucky job seekers look in the newspaper for job openings.

40% look on the Internet.

So if you're looking for a job...or you've got a job opening to tell people about...doesn't it make sense for both of you to meet where you're most likely to find one another?

That's right...in the newspaper.

It's all right here. In the newspaper.

This fact brought to you by the Kentucky Press Association and its 162 member newspapers.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that on January 17, 2014 Kentucky Utilities Company ("KU") filed an application with the Public Service Commission, Frankfort, Kentucky for approval of revisions in its Demand-Side-Management and Energy-Efficiency ("DSM/EE") program portfolio, as shown in KU's Adjustment Clause Demand-Side Management Cost Recovery Mechanism ("DSMCRM") tariff and the resulting changes in its DSMCRM charges. In its application, KU notified the KPSC that the revised DSMCRM tariff sheets are proposed to become effective on and after February 16, 2014; however, because KU anticipates the Commission will suspend the proposed changes in the DSMCRM tariff to conduct an investigation of the proposed changes, KU has asked the Commission to approve the proposed changes in its DSM/EE program portfolio and resulting increases in the charges under the DSMCRM mechanism in its DSMCRM tariff to be effective on January 1, 2015.

The proposed changes to the DSM/EE program portfolio, if approved, will result in an increase in the charges calculated under the DSMCRM mechanism. The increase charges for all affected electric rate classes are as follows:

Residential Service Rate RS, Volunteer Fire Department Service Rate VFD, and Low Emission Vehicle Service Rate LEV
Current Charge per kWh	Proposed Charge per kWh	Difference per kWh	% Change
$ 0.00349	$ 0.00378	+ $ 0.00029	+ 8.3%

General Service Rate GS
Current Charge per kWh	Proposed Charge per kWh	Difference per kWh	% Change
$ 0.00238	$ 0.00222	- $ 0.00016	- 6.7%

All Electric School Rate AES
Current Charge per kWh	Proposed Charge per kWh	Difference per kWh	% Change
$ 0.00088	$ 0.00101	+ $ 0.00013	+ 14.7%

Power Service Rate PS, Time-of-Day Secondary Service Rate TODS, and Time-of-Day Primary Service Rate TODP
Current Charge per kWh	Proposed Charge per kWh	Difference per kWh	% Change
$ 0.00067	$ 0.00069	+ $ 0.00002	+ 3.0%

KU projects that the monthly bill impact of the new DSM/EE programs and program enhancements will be an increase of $0.29 per month for a KU residential electric customer using 1,000 kWh per month.

This tariff filing may be examined at the office of Kentucky Utilities Company, One Quality Street, Lexington, Kentucky, or on Kentucky Utilities Company's website at www.lge-ku.com.

This tariff filing may also be examined at the Commission's offices located at 211 Sower Boulevard, Frankfort, Kentucky, Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., or through the Commission's website at <http://psc.ky.gov>.

Comments regarding this tariff filing may be submitted to the Public Service Commission through its website or by mail to Public Service Commission, Post Office Box 615, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602.

The proposed changes to the DSM/EE program portfolio and associated increase in the charges calculated under the DSMCRM mechanism contained in this notice are proposed by Kentucky Utilities Company. The Public Service Commission may order changes to KU's proposed DSM/EE program portfolio that may result in charges under the DSMCRM mechanism that differ from the proposed charges contained in this notice.

A person may submit a timely written request for intervention to the Public Service Commission, Post Office Box 615, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602, establishing the grounds for the request including the status and interest of the party. If the Commission does not receive a written request for intervention within thirty (30) days of the initial publication or mailing of the notice, the Commission may take final action on the tariff filing.

NOTICE OF SALE

SPECIAL MASTER COMMISSIONER OF ANDERSON CIRCUIT COURT

By virtue of orders of the Anderson Circuit Court in the below listed actions, I shall proceed to offer for sale, at public auction, the real estate described herein to the highest and best bidder at the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky, on Thursday, January 30, 2014 at or about 1:00 p.m. E.D.T., which real estate is located in Anderson County, Kentucky, to-wit:

SALE NO. 1:

JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. v Susan Renee Sea, et al., Civil Action No. 12-CI-00061, Anderson Circuit Court, Anderson County, Kentucky; said property being more commonly known as 100 Lynn Drive, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky 40342, of record in Deed Book 188, Page 567 in the County Clerk's Office, Anderson County, Kentucky.

The foregoing parcel of real estate shall be sold on terms of cash deposit or cashier's check or certified check in the amount of the purchase price, or 10% down at the time of sale and the balance thereof due and payable in thirty (30) days after date of sale. The purchaser(s) of said real estate shall have the right to pay all or any part of the purchase price by cashier's or certified check, or the Special Master Commissioner shall take from the purchaser(s) by cashier's or certified check the sum of 10% down and a good and sufficient bond with surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner payable to the Special Master Commissioner for the balance of said purchase price, and bearing interest from date of sale at the rate of 12% per annum until paid in full. Compliance with the foregoing terms shall be at the time of the sale and the requirement of good surety shall not be waived by the Special Master Commissioner under any circumstance other than prior order of the Court. The bid of any purchaser not complying with said terms shall be rejected by the Master Commissioner and the property immediately resold.

Each tract or parcel of real estate shall be sold subject to the following:

A. All ad valorem real estate taxes, currently due or delinquent, for which the purchaser(s) shall receive no credit against the purchase price;

B. Easements, restrictions, stipulations and agreements of record in the Office of the Clerk of the County Court of Anderson County, Kentucky;

C. Assessments for public improvements levied against the property;

D. Any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose; and

E. Any and all planning and zoning regulations imposed upon the subject property.

SALE NO. 1:

The amount of money to be raised is the sum of $ 105,127.28 plus interest and costs as set out in a Judgment and Order of Sale of the Anderson Circuit Court dated November 7, 2013.

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S NOTE

All prospective purchasers are advised to fully understand and consider the following:

1. All properties are sold strictly as is, with no warranties expressed or implied. Properties shall be sold at the front door of the Courthouse as indicated above.

2. Risk of loss to improvements to real estate shifts to purchaser as of date of sale. Insurance should be placed immediately by successful bidder.

3. All properties sold for less than two-thirds of appraised value subject to current owner statutory right of redemption pursuant to Kentucky Revised Statutes.

4. Rights of possession given to purchasers with deed, but holdover occupants of real estate may require additional Court action by purchaser to acquire actual possession.

5. Master Commissioner's deed warrants title only so far as authorized by the judgment, orders and proceedings of the Court, but no further. Independent title examination by successful purchaser is recommended prior to confirmation of sale.
